

Jessica Leeburg
(609) 898-4500
(609) 898-3585 fax
jessica@capemay.com

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

February 6, 2007

CAPE MAY MAGAZINE REVIVES THE ROMAN CALENDAR

CAPE MAY—March might seem a little late to be releasing a 2007 calendar, but in Cape May, it's right on time.

“We wanted to include major holidays but also the major Cape May events, and that meant waiting until everyone in town had firmed up their calendars,” said publisher Bernie Haas. “People have asked for a printed calendar that's useful for tourists and locals alike, and we've delivered that.”

Cape Publishing is set to ship its new calendar at the end of February. The calendar, the company's first since 1999, spans March 2007 through February 2008 and showcases the best of CapeMay.com's “Picture of the Day” as chosen by online readers. In addition to major holidays, it features local events such as Jackson Street's Oktoberfest, Victorian Week, and the West Cape May Lima Bean Festival.

The full color, limited-edition calendar is available only as a premium for current and new subscribers of Cape May Magazine through February 18 and will not be available for purchase.

Cape Publishing, Inc. has published CapeMay.com, an internet magazine and Cape May guide, since its inception in 1998. In addition to publishing Cape May Magazine, the company provides creative, effective web design and hosting services for Cape May's hospitality businesses.

###

To subscribe to Cape May Magazine, visit www.capemaymag.com